THE "TRUCKERS" NOT IN IT

"Dick" Padden's Boys Show the Home Lads How to Play.

Fry Was Invincible, While Clare Was Hit Sufficiently to Win the Game. The Roanokes Bunched Five Hits in the Eighth and Won Easily.

Four hits were all the home team could get off "Foxy" Fry yesterday, and as four scattering hits very sel-dom win a game, the consequence is that the "Truckers" went down yesthat the Truckers went down yea-terday afternoon, before the all round clever work of the Roanokes, who younded the delivery of Pitcher Clare for eleven hits with a total of fourteen bases. The Portsmouth boys were reto eleven him with the content of the content of the exception of two innings, the fourth and the sixth. In the fourth Caville hit the ball, and a nice clean single was the result. He stole second very cleverly, and took third on a wild pitch. Vetter hit a fly to Lewis in left field, Knox hit to Padden and Caville was thrown out at the home plate. was thrown out at the home plate. Mangan was hit by Fry, and all Hargrovs did was to send one out to the jeft field fence for two bases, scoring Knox and Mangan. That was all, as the balance of the game was easy for the visitors.

Roanoke got two runs in the second, one of which was earned. Padden hat for two bases, Cavannaugh made a nice single and Padden crossed the plate; Viox hit a very prelty high fly to "Hoggy," who had to run for it and not getting under it good he dropped at, and "Cavvy" scored. One more was made in the seventh on a hit by Viox, an error of Mangan, a stolen base and an out to Hargrove; but the fatal ninth came, and, Oh, how the "Magicians" did take to Clare's curves. Little led off with a single, Padden beat one out to first; Cavannaugh went out from Fuller to Mangan, Clark singled, and Viox put one out in the field and landed safely on second, and "Jakey" Sherer followed suit. Result, four runs, and the game was won fairly and honorably by the Rosnoke got two runs in the second.

suit. Result, four runs, and the game was won fairly and honorably by the visitors, who put up a magnificent game, both at the hat and in the field. Yesterday being Ladies' Day the grand stand was well filled, and although those occupying it rooted, and rooted hard for the "Truckers" yet, nothing it seemed could avail against the "Magneiaus" and they left the grounds sorry, but in a good frame of mind toward the Roonoke boys for a splendid exhibition of the National game. The bleachers did not contain a very great crowd, and there was not very much enthusiasm in that quarter very much enthusiasm in that quarter even after the home team had tied the score in the fourth inning. school—with a bang.

There was a crash of falling wheels, a windmill-like effect of waving limbs, only one pair of which wore golf steck-ings, by the way, while a feminine shrick and a masly adjuration in uni son were blended. When the attendants, used to such affairs, had straightened out the tangle and both riders were once more upon their feet, somewhat ruffled in their gay plumage and their tempers, but otherwise uninjured, she said:

"You are no gentleman!" Carefully viewing her scanty costume, he roplied, "Perhaps not, but allow me to say that I have seen enough of you to know that you are not one either.

A Foundation Sacrifice.

It was recently ascertained that the ower of Darrington church about four miles from Pontefract had suffered some damage during the winter gales. The foundations were carefully examined, when it was found that under the west side of the tower, only about a foot deer from the surface, the body of a man had been placed in a sort of bad in a solid rock, and the west wall was actually resting upon his skull.

The gentle vibration of the tower had opened the sutures in the skull and publican high muck-a-muck of Philadel-caused a crack about 23, inches long phia, has held out for low wages as long The grave must have been prepared and the wall placed with deliberate inten tion upon the head of the person buried, and this was done with such care and art that all remained as placed for at least 600 years—till, in fact, the storm of Docomber last found out the weak place. M'KINLEY TARIFF HISTORY.

A Ruinous Economic Policy That Lowered Wages and Increased Taxes.

The McKinley tariff law went into operation on the 6th day of October, 1800. At that time business was prosperous, industrial enterprises active, wages good and the people were content-ed, says the Kansas City Times. But that measure instantly introduced a change. Labor was promised by the sup-porters of the bill more liberal compensation for its efforts, and industry been assured of greater rewards and ac tivity. But the opposite result ensued. The revenues fell off materially, while the tax burdens were increased. The magnificent surplus which had accumu lated in the treasury was dissipated without a proportionate reduction of the public debt.

In the spring of 1892, a year before the expiration of the Harrison administration's term of office, and more than two years before the repeal of the Mc-Kinley law, the logical effect of the ruinous economic policy embraced in that measure began to assert itself in all centers of industry. Wages were reduced in the coke region, in the coal mining districts, in the New England machine shops and textile factories and in the iron manufacturing sections. This downward tendency culminated in the Home-stead strike in July of that year. The distress then inaugurated, augmented by time and sharpened by adverse conditions, continued until the panic set in year later.

The McKipley law was repealed during the regular session of the last con-gress. The measure which took its place went into operation about the middle of October, 1894. At once there were exhibited signs of industrial and commer cial improvement. Merchants began buying more freely. The increased tonnage added to the earnings of the railroads, and mills and factories that had been idle for two years were set in motion Early this spring wages began to advance, and now, after seven months' experience under the Democratic tariff law, the wage rate which prevails throughout the country is nearly back to the standard that existed before the Mc Kinley law was passed.

THE DEMOCRATIC TARIFF

No Longer a Doubt as to the Wisdom of ton Journal.

Disston, the great sawmaker and Reas he dared and has now joined the pro-cession of wage raisers. Meanwhile the authors of the Wilson bill look on and smile contentedly, confident that, so far as the tariff is concerned, the Democratic record will soon be approved by an overwhelming majority of the people.

The restoration of wages to about the standard that prevailed before the panic of 1893 is now very general in the iron and steel industries, and it is already extending among the textile industries as well. The revival has been slow, but sure. The tariff question will not play the leading role in the campaign of next year. Governor McKinley's great mistake consists in persisting that it will, and in staking his chances of being struck by presidential lightning upon that belief.—New York Mercury.

Feeding by Clockwork.

George W. Belt of Auburn has invented an ingenious device for feeding his horse, and he does it with one of the ordinary little alarm clocks. The horse gets its feed of grain when the alarm goes off.

For instance, if Mr. Belt wants the horse to have its morning feed of grain at 5 o'clock, and he himself does not care to turn out until 6 o'clock, he sets his alarm for 5 o'clock, and when the morning comes the horse gets its break-fast an hour before its owner's eyes are open. It is so arranged that the alarm pulls the slide, letting the grain run through a sluice to the manger.—Lewis-
